

Aixa Beauchamp is a philanthropic leader, independent consultant, and mission-driven industry executive. She is known as a bold and committed leader, persistent in working to strengthen Latino and underserved communities in various sectors, from philanthropic and organizational development to education and economic mobility. In 2018, Boston Magazine named her as one of the 100 Most Influential People in Boston, and the Women of the Harvard Club Committee honored her with Boston's Most Influential Woman Award in 2015. She has been featured in Financial Times Wealth, The Boston Globe, and Inside Philanthropy. Deeply invested in the Latino community, Aixa and her husband Thomas have established the Melendez Beauchamp Family Fund at the Boston Foundation, which supports education and health initiatives.

As the Managing Director of Beauchamp and Associates, Aixa delivers consulting services to nonprofit and philanthropic organizations through Project Design and Management, Resource Development, Executive Coaching, and Board Development and Governance.
